FOREWORD

Background History

The first Leadville Cemetery and the present Lake County High School football field occupy the same general location at the western end of Chestnut Street. The Cemetery's boundaries extend past the point where the Erie Grande railroad crosses and track over a number of graves, when the line came into Leadville in 1888.

Interments were accepted in the new Evergreen Cemetery beginning in November of 1878. Over the following years, several people were moved from the Leadville Cemetery to the Evergreen Cemetery and the former was known as "the old cemetery". When St. Joseph's Cemetery was opened for use in June of 1888, many people were then moved from the Catholic portion of the Evergreen Cemetery to the new Catholic Cemetery.

Mount Holy Cross Cemetery, immediately adjacent to St. Joseph's, began accepting interments in 1918. A few moves from St. Joseph's to Holy-Cross occurred over the following years.

EXPLANATION

For you to use this listing to the fullest advantage, you should be aware of some of the difficulties encountered in preparing it.

Handwriting: The basic material was taken from the original church and cemetery records and a map. The handwriting varies, some, at best, legible and, at their worst, they were totally indecipherable.

Spelling: Entries in the various records and on the original St. Joseph's map were often spelled either in the most common form or as the name sounded to the author of the entry. Fortunately, many of the errors in spelling and interpreting/handwriting have been corrected when tombstones were found or when located in other sources. Unfortunately, many people do not have a tombstone and were not listed in any other source and so we have no way of verifying correct spellings for their names.

Name changes: Many names have a form "Americanized" during the past fifty years. Sometimes such a change involved only writing or substituting various letters and sometimes an entirely different spelling was chosen.

We have retained all variants of names as found on tombstones and have indicated in a footnote variations as found elsewhere in the listing to assist in locating others with the same surname. Since we are not an expert in this field, we urge to search for every possible spelling variation.

It would also appear that some names are interchangeable with others. McCarty and McCarty were examples of this. While they are two distinct names they were often used by members of precisely the same family. Tackling an "s" or a "Mc" in front of a surname can also be expected. We have tried to warn you of this by slipping a "See Also" into the listing.

Incomplete data: The records for the Catholic cemeteries do not include burial locations within the cemeteries. Many records indicated a site independently. Therefore, if a specific tombstone or marker was not found during the monthly grave search of the cemeteries, there is no way to determine the location of a person's burial site.

On the rare occasion when a record gave us a hint as to a specific location, such as an indication that so-and-so was buried in the Christian Lodge Block, we have included this data in a footnote. We regret that too many people must be left without a location.

Our deepest thanks to Father George Sypka, Father Albert Hahnke, Alan Hewitt, and Public Service Co. This incredible research job would never have been possible without their cooperation, patience and good humor.

INFORMATION GIVEN

Each entry in the listing contains the following data, if known:

Date: Either when the entry was made in the Evergreen Cemetery Register or the date of death as taken from the tombstone or marker. This may vary as much as a month from the actual date of death. Two or three of these thousandths of tombstones may give the wrong year.

Name: Self-explanatory.

Age: Either as taken from the records or as calculated from the tombstone or marker. Please don't depend on a given age as being correct.

Location: The combination of Block, or Section, Lot or Grave as used in its specific area. This is followed by the cemetery—either Holy Cross or St. Joseph's.

Marked: If the grave site is plainly marked by a tombstone or marker, an M is given. If, by chance, the exact burial site was recorded in the cemetery records but a tombstone or a marker is not present to verify this data, an "m/s" (not marked) is used.

It must be understood that the designation "marked" can be misleading. There were times when a marker was obviously on the site but because it was not in a condition to be read, we were forced to disregard it. In other instances, we were able to read some extremely poor markers when, perhaps, you cannot. There were sites so being marked. You must also take into consideration that the elements and the vandals are entirely apt to change the status of any location at any given moment. What is standing in place and legible during the spring and summer of 1981 may or may not be the same thereafter. And last, but not least, new markers may be placed by thoughtful relatives or friends which would then change the site from its listing only to an "M."

"N" indicates that the person was entered in either Church and/or cemetery records, as being buried in one of the two Catholic cemeteries but a location was not ascertained by all of the available means.

If a surname was found on the original St. Joseph's map for a specific site but a tombstone or a marker with that name is not on the site, it is assumed that either someone by that name bought the grave site and didn't use it or someone is buried there that we cannot account for and an "m/s" (map only) is used. The m/s occur frequently throughout this listing and may assist you in determining a possible location.

Comments: This volume contains variations of names in or out of the Cemetery, possible unverified spelling variations, additional data from the original sources, and other conflicting and/or helpful information.

NOTE

These Catholic cemeteries' listing and the Evergreen Cemetery listing's microfilm should be used in conjunction with each other. When the two are used as a whole, it increases the possibility of tying together families and of locating an individual who may have been buried in the Catholic section of Evergreen.

The volunteers who have compiled this data for your use have done so with the desire to do the most accurate and complete work that is possible. Since this listing is comprised entirely of information taken from second-hand sources, which all presented the aforementioned difficulties, we cannot assure you that this is complete and accurate.

Since the numbering system for Lots within the original twenty-four blocks of St. Joseph's (A - X) changes whimsically and without warning, we suggest that you study the map of the cemetery area (located at the end of this microfilmed listing) for ease in locating a specific Lot.

Twin Lakes

Dayton became the county seat of Lake County in 1860. Some short time later, the town shifted location a bit and its name changed to Twin Lakes. Always a popular summer resort, the town's tourist business really boomed in 1888, when the railroad passed a few miles to the east.

There are presently two cemeteries in the Twin Lakes' area and, most probably, a third one of an older vintage whose location and residents are lost to all time. One of these is referred to here as the "Old Twin Lakes Cemetery" although its dates are not appreciably older than the "Current Twin Lakes Cemetery."

Records concerning those people who are buried in the Twin Lakes area have not been located at this writing. Consequently, the following names are only those, which appear on legible tombstones and in mortuary records. They do not account for everyone buried here.

GRANITE

The town of Granite, Colorado, straddles the Arkansas River very near the site of what was "Kellie's Bar" in 1890. In 1858, Granite was named the county seat of Lake County, although it is now in Charlie County. The record of those who have been buried in Granite's cemetery has not been located at this writing. Consequently, the following names are only those, which appear as legible tombstones in the cemetery. They are disappointingly few in number and obviously do not account for all of those who are interred here.

The oldest legible tombstone, which is still standing, dates to 1878. It is unknown whether the cemetery was used prior to that year or whether another existed whose location and residents are lost to history.

GRANITE

The town of Granite, Colorado, straddles the Arkansas River very near the site of what was "Kellie's Bar" in 1890. In 1858, Granite was named the county seat of Lake County, although it is now in Charlie County. The record of those who have been buried in Granite's cemetery has not been located at this writing. Consequently, the following names are only those, which appear as legible tombstones in the cemetery. They are disappointingly few in number and obviously do not account for all of those who are interred here.

The oldest legible tombstone, which is still standing, dates to 1878. It is unknown whether the cemetery was used prior to that year or whether another existed whose location and residents are lost to history.

Twin Lakes

Dayton became the county seat of Lake County in 1860. Some short time later, the town shifted location a bit and its name changed to Twin Lakes. Always a popular summer resort, the town's tourist business really boomed in 1888, when the railroad passed a few miles to the east.

There are presently two cemeteries in the Twin Lakes' area and, most probably, a third one of an older vintage whose location and residents are lost to all time. One of these is referred to here as the "Old Twin Lakes Cemetery" although its dates are not appreciably older than the "Current Twin Lakes Cemetery."

Records concerning those people who are buried in the Twin Lakes area have not been located at this writing. Consequently, the following names are only those, which appear on legible tombstones and in mortuary records. They do not account for everyone buried here.
